

fighting, which is why you can't see them, but their claws get their legs and bodies working in getting ready to fight.

Even though they're normally aggressive, male Komodo fighting for take care of their children is not as possible. The male can take babies to make a burrow for the egg with their mouth. He can also carry multiple eggs in his mouth at the same time. Surprisingly, females don't do much for the babies but laying the eggs. People from all around the world enjoy having this pet.