

What do the shark say when he ate the cowfish? "Very tasty, a little funny." Cowfish are fishes that have 30 known species. The average lifespan for a cowfish in the wild is between 1 to 10 years. Cowfish live in the warm waters of the coral reefs and shallow seas. Unlike its finning friends, male cowfish are dedicated fathers. They will prepare the nest for the female, and guard the eggs. One of the most aggressive and most beautiful fish in the sea, it has a prominent eye, originally bred in Japan. It was freshwater fish that came in a variety of colors, including red, orange, and yellow. One of the most common fishes seen in the world is goldfishes. Goldfish have a lifespan averaging about 10-15 years. The cowfish shark is a mackerel fish. The mackerel fish is a small highly colored member of the Scombridae family. You shouldn't touch a mackerel fish due to its vibrant colors. The mackerel fish's body

(problem solved, here we go)