

What I learned while drawing animals for the art contest!

As I was drawing, I realized that the Yellow-throated Warbler has so many details on it that I didn't think of. The yellow throat really pops-out. I just sketched the Northern Cardinal and didn't put any colors in it, but I like the patterns in the feathers and how they look. They are just so beautiful and they are the only birds that I use during the winter. (I enjoy being outside.) So make this drawing. I looked at a picture of a bird and then I added flowers and colors instead of the background of a forest.
