

Painted bunting. Why did I choose it? Not only it is a colorful and beautiful bird, also the populations of painted bunting are declining due to human daily work and live make their habitats being lost. Will you feel sorry if we can't see these beautiful birds any more? Start with us, respect every other living creature. and don't take their home away. We will together make our earth as colorful.